Executive Summary

Pieter den Hamer
Conference Chair and Sr Director Analyst, Gartner

Thank you for choosing to spend your time with us during Gartner Data & Analytics Summit 2022. Your participation means so much to us, especially during this time of continuous disruption. Thank you for coming together, engaging in the exchange of ideas, and to seeing you at Gartner Data & Analytics Summit 2023. We sincerely hope you feel inspired, connected, and prepared for the year ahead.

Whether you“As a leader, you have the chance to respond to change and to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator.

To prevent tactical, strategic, and operational consequences, you must respond to change, you have the opportunity to drive change. You can strengthen the management practices, tap into the importance and value of sharing opportunities, and make decisions that reengineer decision making and turn it into a competitive differentiator. 