Sales activities build on each other. If one is missing, misplaced or misprioritized your sales strategy could become unstable.

CSOs are often mistaken about where their sales organization is hurting or why. Twelve sales activities create the foundation of a successful sales strategy. What most don’t know is that they are all required for success.

Identify and discern differences to better prioritize actions and strengthen your operations.